08/05/2017 Selected journalists from around the world had the opportunity to test the new Porsche 911 GT3 in the sunshine of southern Spain. Here is an overview of the event.

Porsche unveiled the new 911 GT3 in Geneva in the spring. Now, international journalists have had their first chance to take a seat in the sports car themselves. Granada and its surrounding area is the ideal location for a test drive: a picturesque landscape, beautiful weather – and a winding race track.

The experts were able to put the sporty new GT3 through its paces away from any traffic on the three-kilometre “Circuito Guadix” track. The results speak for themselves.
