15/07/2016 On 23 July, round seven of the most important and popular sports car race series on the North American continent, the IMSA WeatherTech SportsCar Championship, takes off on the Lime Rock Park racetrack.

At just 2.414 kilometres, the Lime Rock Park racetrack located in the picturesque rural region in the US state of Connecticut is the shortest on the championship calendar. This marks the first outing for the Porsche North America factory team at Lime Rock Park, with the squad fielding two Porsche 911 RSR in the GTLM class. The racer from Weissach is based on the seventh generation of the iconic 911 sports car and so far this season has won the race at Long Beach. In the GTD class, Porsche customer teams campaign the new 911 GT3 R, the winning car at Laguna Seca.
