Porsche Tennis Grand Prix live on TV and in Internet

Powerful TV and Internet partners ensure that fans will not miss a single rally even if they cannot spectate live in the Porsche Arena. In Germany the long-time TV partner Eurosport, one of the Warner Bros. Discovery platforms, will televise a total of 12 matches live on free-to-air TV. They will include the semifinals on Saturday and the final on Sunday at 13.00 hrs _(all times are local)_. Eurosport will begin broadcasting on Monday, 15 April with a match at 18.30 hrs. It will also show two matches daily from Tuesday to Friday starting at 17.00 hrs. All the other Centre Court matches from Wednesday to Friday will be streamed on discovery+.

In collaboration with Porsche, the new TV partner DAZN will transmit every Centre Court match live from Monday. As a special service for the fans, all the televised matches are available for free. They can be viewed on the cost-free option in the DAZN app as well as on the DAZN Tennis YouTube channel. Some matches will additionally be shown on the linear DAZN 1 and DAZN 2 TV channels. During the livestreams, fans can communicate with each other in the DAZN FanZone. DAZN will make the interactive community engagement tool available in tennis for the first time at the world class Stuttgart tournament.

Internationally, the long-established Stuttgart event can be viewed in over 100 countries. A detailed broadcasting schedule is available on the tournament website.

Of particular interest for tennis enthusiasts all over the globe is also the extensive reporting on the Porsche Tennis Grand Prix's social media channels. Andrea Petkovic will lead the viewers behind the tournament scenes. "I'm looking forward to my new role and can already promise all tennis lovers many new and interesting insights," said the former world class player and sports reporter who last appeared competitively in the Porsche Arena in 2021.
