07/08/2014 Porsche Exclusive is offering new options for personalising the new Macan. For example a Sport Design package is now available ex-factory.

A Sport Design package, sports exhaust system, bi-xenon headlights and dark-coloured LED rear lights are now available ex-factory. On top of that come the new Sport Classic 21-inch wheel in three colour variants, which draws in its design on the legendary 'Fuchs wheel' of the 911, and new interior offerings. From December these optional extras can also be ordered for retrofitting via Porsche Tequipment.

The Sport Design package includes front body, side sill panels, rear bottom section and side blades in a unique look that underlines the dynamics of the Macan. In addition the roof spoiler's trailing edge and the rear mid-section are painted. The Sport Design package is available either completely in the car's exterior colour or with parts in high gloss black.

Push the Button for sound

At the core of the sports exhaust system are modified silencers, the performance and sound of which can be altered via a special switch on the centre console. Visually the system is recognisable by two twin tailpipe trims made of stainless steel chrome-plated in black or silver.

On the smoked bi-xenon headlights the inner apertures, tubes and painted rims are finished in black. The lights are also equipped as standard with the Porsche Dynamic Light System (PDLS). Matching these there are smoked LED rear lights with dark red lens and surfaces within the fittings finished partially in black.

New interior package: 'Limed Oak'

The range of interior features offered by Porsche Exclusive and Tequipment is also being constantly expanded. With the new 'Limed Oak' interior package, for example, overlays are added to the decorative trim on the instrument panel and in the doors. In addition numerous interior elements, including for instance the frame of the Porsche Communication Management system (PCM), can be embellished with leather or high-gloss finishes.
