02/12/2017 As Porsche's LMP team prepared to say a fond farewell to the FIA World Endurance Championship in Bahrain, two of Porsche's most famous fans sneaked off for a spin in a Macan on the streets around the International Circuit.

With Porsche's Drivetribe tribe leader Mark Webber at the wheel and 911 collector, fashion designer and urban outlaw Magnus Walker in the passenger seat, the pair talk being the race team's lucky charm, the bedroom posters of their childhoods, and losing their Porsche virginity.

Although Walker's race prediction wasn't right, the pair later cheered drivers Earl Bamber, Timo Bernhard and Brendon Hartley, on to a second place finish in the emotional 2017 finale, two weeks after they were crowned 2017 FIA World Endurance Drivers' Champions in Shanghai.
