03/10/2021 Thanks to his fourth win, Ayhancan Güven (Turkey/Phoenix Racing) has kept the fight for the Porsche Carrera Cup Deutschland crown open.

Round 14

At round 14 at the Sachsenring on Sunday, the Porsche Junior beat Christopher Zöchling (Austria/Fach Auto Tech) and Larry ten Voorde (Netherlands/Team GP Elite) to the flag. Heading to the season finale at Hockenheim (22 to 24 October), Saturday's winner ten Voorde sits at the top of the leaderboard, 24 points ahead of Güven. Fifty points are still up for grabs. “I knew that I had to win to improve my chances in the race for the title. And I used it. Now I have to repeat this result at the final event,” said Güven. The team classification decision has already been made: With two races remaining before the end of the season, GP Elite has secured overall victory here at the Sachsenring.

Twenty-six drivers tackled the race held as support to the ADAC GT Masters in their Porsche 911 GT3 Cup. Fans in the grandstands were treated to an entertaining start: Coming from the third grid spot, Zöchling promptly swept past ten Voorde and polesitter Güven. A safety car phase in the second and third lap kept the field bunched together. At the restart, Güven was poised to strike and immediately overtook Zöchling. The 23-year-old then controlled the race at the front of the pack, increased his lead to 1.8-seconds, and crossed the finish line first after 22 laps ahead of Zöchling. “At the start, I opted for the outside line in the first corner. That paid off. Unfortunately, I wasn't able to maintain the front spot to the finish line, but second place is a great result,” concluded Zöchling.

Although Köhler took the flag in third place, he was ultimately handed a 30-second time penalty for causing a collision. As a result, ten Voorde inherited third place. Consequently, his GP Elite squad secured the team championship title early. “It's our second season in the Porsche Carrera Cup Deutschland and it has gone perfectly so far,” said team boss Torsten van Haasteren. The positions behind ten Voorde were occupied by Rudy van Buren (Netherlands/CarTech Motorsport by Nigrin), Jukka Honkavuori (Finland/MRS GT-Racing) and Sandro Kaibach (Germany/Fach Auto Tech). Lukas Ertl (Germany/Van Berghe Huber Racing) crossed the finish line in seventh, with Bastian Buus (Denmark/Allied-Racing) achieving eighth overall as the best rookie.

In the ProAm class, Kim Hauschild (HRT Motorsport) celebrated a double win. After his success on Saturday, the German repeated this feat with victory on Sunday. On the 3.645-kilometre track in Saxony, Hauschild beat his ProAm rivals Georgi Donchev (Bulgaria/Nebulus Racing by Huber) and Jan-Erik Slooten (Germany/Phoenix Racing) to the flag.

“We already have a champion, congratulations to GP Elite on winning the team title. In the overall, rookie and ProAm categories, everything is still wide open. That's a good prerequisite for a suspenseful finale at Hockenheim and speaks volumes about the high level of competition in our series,” said Hurui Issak, Project Manager of the Porsche Carrera Cup Deutschland.

The eighth race weekend of the Porsche Carrera Cup Deutschland will be contested at the Hockenheimring Baden-Württemberg from 22 to 24 October. As hot favourites for the title, ten Voorde (281 points) and Güven (257 points) travel to the final round of the season run as part of the ADAC GT Masters support programme. In the rookie classification, Loek Hartog (Netherlands/Black Falcon Team Textar) leads with 265 points and fights for class honours against Buus (263 points). The title decision in the ProAm class will be made between the Luxembourger Carlos Rivas (Black Falcon Team Textar/300 points) and Hauschild (265 points).

Larry ten Voorde (Team GP Elite) has won race 13 of the Porsche Carrera Cup Deutschland. Thanks to his seventh victory so far this season, the Dutchman has extended his championship lead over Porsche Junior Ayhancan Güven (Turkey/Phoenix Racing) by 33 points. “In terms of the overall standings, this was a great success. I didn't manage to get past Ayhancan Güven at the start, but I found a gap shortly afterwards and I grabbed my chance," said ten Voorde. Güven finished the race run as support to the ADAC GT Masters in second place. Scoring third place, Julian Hanses (Germany/HRT Performance) celebrated his first podium result in the German one-make cup.

The race on the tradition-steeped track in Saxony was marked by a turbulent early phase. At the start, polesitter Güven initially defended his front spot at the wheel of his Porsche 911 GT3 Cup but had to relinquish it to the current Carrera Cup champion shortly afterwards. When several vehicles slid into the gravel trap in the first corners, the safety car was deployed while the cars were salvaged. The fully electric Porsche Taycan Turbo S spearheaded the field for over five laps. At the restart, ten Voorde demonstrated his expertise on his 25th birthday and ultimately crossed the finish line in first place 1.8 seconds ahead of Güven. “Overtaking on this narrow circuit is a big challenge. Unfortunately, I didn't manage to put Larry ten Voorde under any significant pressure. I take up Sunday's race from pole position again and I'm determined to win," stated Güven.

Third place went to Hanses. In his second Carrera Cup season, the 24-year-old climbed the podium for the first time. “Since my first race, my goal has been to secure a top-three result. The key to this was that I got a super start and managed to move straight into third place," explained Hanses. A gripping duel for fourth place unfolded between Christopher Zöchling (Austria/Fach Auto Tech) and Leon Köhler (Germany/Nebulus Racing by Huber). At the flag, the experienced Austrian came out on top. Köhler claimed fifth place followed by the Talent Pool driver Morris Schuring (Netherlands/Team GP Elite) as the best rookie. Jukka Honkavuori (Finland/MRS GT-Racing) achieved seventh place, with Bastian Buus (Denmark/Allied-Racing) rounding off the top eight.

Spectators were treated to some gripping action in the ProAm class: Over large stretches, the YouTube star Jan-Erik Slooten (Germany) led the ProAm field. In the final minutes, however, Kim Hauschild (Germany/HRT Motorsport) squeezed past the Phoenix Racing driver. Third place went to the current ProAm points' leader Carlos Rivas (Black Falcon Team Textar) from Luxembourg.

Race 14 of the Porsche Carrera Cup season takes off on Sunday at 3:10 pm local time and will be broadcast live on the German free TV Sport1. Fans can also watch the race on the 3.645-kilometre Sachsenring via a live stream on the YouTube and Facebook channels of the Porsche Carrera Cup Deutschland as well as in the Porsche Motorsport Hub.
